

CoLED

October
27, 28 & 29th
2016

CoLED is an interdisciplinary hub for innovative research on the future of ethnography and design,
linking faculty, graduate students,
and initiatives across the University of California system.

SAVE THE DATE for the

CoLED CONFERENCE

AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
SAN DIEGO

ETHNOGRAPHY & DESIGN MUTUAL PROVOCATIONS

Ethnography & Design: Mutual Provocations is an international conference presenting invited speakers from around the world in a series of curated roundtables, interactive workshops, and multimedia and performance works.

The conference theme takes up the variation and disjuncture that academic ethnographers find in the concepts of design and ethnography.

When ethnographers talk about design, are they offering a critique of a practice as complicit with global capitalism? Building new and innovative modes of integrating ethnographic practice with collaborative maker-practice? Or exploring innovations in research design that engage digital, visual, and performative formats?

The conference brings ethnographers working in all of these modes together for a series of curated, provocative conversations.

To submit a proposal for a conference workshop, or to register to attend, visit

<http://coled.ucsd.edu/>

Workshop proposals are due by July 15th. Early bird registration by August 15th.